
Girolamo Odds 2009 Breeders' Cup

Contributed by Pat Spence
Saturday, 07 November 2009
Last Updated Friday, 06 November 2009

Girolamo Odds 2009 Breeders' Cup: Trainer Saeed bin Suroor was on hand to track his progress after arriving the day before and Girolamo, the 3yo son of A.P. Indy galloped at Santa Anita Thursday morning in preparation for his run in the Classic. Girolamo will break from the 9 position. The 2009 Breeders' Cup Betting Odds makers at Sportsbook.com have Girolamo at 20-1 odds to win the Breeders' Cup Classic.

"This is a tough race, hard race to ask of him, but we'll give him a chance," he said of the Godolphin runner, who comes into the Classic off a three-race win streak that includes an Oct. 11 victory in the Jerome. A long shot at best, but like Baffert says, "you never know";

Alan Garcia, jockey aboard Girolamo's recent win: "It was a very good trip. The pace was a little fast, and my horse didn't break that quickly like I thought he would. But, I was very comfortable, relaxing and my horse was very comfortable. I only had to hit him a couple of times in the stretch and after that I knew I had the race won. I stopped riding and let him do it on his own. He's a very nice horse. It was a nice race for him."

Get a 50% Deposit Bonus & a $25 Free Bet at Sportsbook.com for the best 2009 Breeders' Cup Betting Odds. Want 13 chances to get 13 Free Bets? Then visit the Sportsbook.com Bet Menu or Racebook during the Breeders' Cup this Friday and Saturday and win up to $200.00 in Free Bets.