Super Saver 2010 Kentucky Derby Betting Odds: In the running for the 2010 Kentucky Derby is Super Saver who is coming in at 15 to 1 odds and is owned by WinStar Farms. Will that chance reveal itself for this 3-year-old Colt? Go to BODOG.com to get all of the current betting odds on all of your Kentucky Derby favorites.

Trainer Todd Pletcher has put a lot of effort in this thoroughbred and he'll see if all of his hard work has paid off soon. With the last generation of Super Saver not showing much promise, his grandfather on his mom's side was a true champion. Now retired at 21 years old, A. P. Indy brought in mostly 1st place finishes in 1991 & 1992 in G1 races. Let's just hope he can follow in those footsteps.

"He's only had one race this year (third in the Tampa Bay Derby on March 13) and the thing you hope for is to move forward in a race like this," Elliot Walden who oversees Super Saver for WinStar Farm said before going into the Arkansas Derby-G1. "He did that and we just hope he puts it all together in the Kentucky Derby."

Starting his career in August of 2009, Super Saver came in 2nd in the MSW at Saratoga Race Course in New York with jockey John Velazquez, September brought in a 1st place win in the MSW at Belmont Park in New York with jockey Ramon Dominguez, October added a 4th place finish to his resume in the Champagne-G1 at Belmont Park with jockey Velazquez, and rounded out 2009 with another 1st place win in the Kentucky Jockey Club-G2 with jockey Calvin Borel. 2010 hasn't been too bad for this Colt with March bringing in a 3rd place finish in the Tampa Bay Derby-G3 Tampa Bay Downs with jockey Dominguez and a 2nd place finish in April in the Arkansas Derby-G1 at Oakland Park with jockey Borel. Let's see if he can add a 1st place finish for 2010.
